DECORATIONS COMPLETED

Interior of St. Augustine's Church Transformed After Many Months' Labor in Readiness for Easter Season.

The beautifully redecorated interior of St. Augustine's church fresh from the hands of skilled workmen who have been employed for four months is practically complete.

Against a deep cream background suffused with rose as it approaches the wainscoting is a delicate stencil of rich colors picked out with gold outlining the stained glass windows and bringing them into harmony with the plain wall color. The whole effect is light and pleasing.

The ceiling of the nave is divided into seven bays forming seven central panels on each side in which are painted emblems or symbols.

The first symbol on the gospel side is the Lamb and Book of Revelation; opposite it is the Pelican feeding his young, symbolical of the Mother Church in Her solicitude for Her Children. In the second panel is the coat of arms of St. Augustine, patron of this church and Doctor of the Holy Roman Church, with the Arms of St. Gregory the Great opposite.

In the next panel is an emblem of the Holy Eucharist and opposite is that of Baptism. The fourth panels contain the Arms of St. Ambrose and those of St. Jerome, completing the Arms of the Four Doctors of the Church.

In the fifth panels are found an emblem of Penance or symbols of the Passion, and a cross and crown with laurels. The sixth panels have the Arms of St. Peter and of St. Paul, and in the seventh panels, a symbol of Mary, Star of the Sea and Anchor of Hope and the Rosary or the Love of Mary symbolized by a Heart entwined with the scapular and Rosary.

This work was done by the firm of William J. Dolan of Boston, interior decorators.

The initial work of retouching the stations of the cross was done nearly a year ago. Subsequently the pedestals of all the statues have been retouched and all the figures cleaned. The addition of panels of gold leaf on the altar give a very rich effect particularly when the altar is lighted.

An altar carpet of emerald green in a heavy texture was laid this week and the revarnishing of the pews is completed.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

"Following Nature's Trail" by Manley Bacon Townsend Interests Large Audience in Punchard Hall.

The wonders of woods, pastures and stream, their great variety of bird and insect life, the spring and summer flowers and the differing, but equal beauties of nature in winter were brought to the large audience which assembled in Punchard hall Tuesday evening when Manley Bacon Townsend gave his illustrated lecture "Following Nature's Trail" under the auspices of the Andover Natural History Society.

These public lectures are an annual feature in the program of the society and this year's event was the best and most largely attended that has yet been held. Mr. Townsend is an ardent nature lover and his lantern slide- were beautifully and accurately colored.

His first picture was of the common toad under the doorstep, a homely little creature, yet one whose services to the state as a destroyer of bugs and worms is estimated at $18.98 a year.

The series of views then shown led one in imagination through the barnyard where the swallows were darting about, under the arching elms from whose drooping branches hung the nest of the oriole and on into the fields and woods with their great variety of bird and animal life.

Familiar birds including the grosbeak, wren, red-crested fly catcher, the white throated swallow, red start bobolink, and kingfishers all of which can be seen in Andover by the close observer were shown in their native haunts. The difference in the markings of male and female, cunningly built nests, examples of remarkable protective coloring both in the eggs and plumage were pointed out by the lecturer.

The pictured skunks and snakes were quite as much appreciated by most of the spectators as if they had actually been viewed in the flesh. Mr. Townsend assured

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

The wheel of fortune has turned for Mr. George Arliss and he has at last an excellent vehicle for his sterling talents in "The Green Goddess" at the Plymouth Theatre. Not since "The Darling of the Gods" have we had the opportunity of seeing him in an Oriental role, although such parts seem to fit him like the proverbial glove. Mr. William Archer's play is frankly, avowedly a melodrama, but a melodrama so cunningly and tastefully constructed as to delight both the epicurean critic and the tired business man. No short quotations could give more than a faint impression of the brilliancy of dialogue, the biting satire on British institutions as seen through Oriental eyes, the moving eloquence of the more tragic scenes. Only such a master of stage technique as Mr. Archer could have turned the play's conclusion, which might so easily have been a vulgar and disappointing anti-climax, into the happiest and neatest of endings. The author of "Play-Making" has here demonstrated, in actual practice, his mastery of the technique of the drama. Mr. Arliss has been surrounded with a supporting cast of unusual merit, including Miss Lotus Robb, Cyril Keightley and Herbert Waring. The production is excellently staged by Mr. Winthrop Ames.

SHUBERT THEATRE

It is indeed a brilliant brush, the critics say, that painted the third annual production of the Greenwich Village Follies now playing at the Shubert Theatre, where it is being presented for the first times by The Bohemians, Inc., A. L. Jones and Morris Green, managing directors. It was devised and staged by John Murray Anderson. This third annual production has been described as a pallet of color from the splendid brilliancy of its Village Fair Scene to the beautiful Beardsley Figures in black and silver, upon which the final curtain drops.

There is always a novelty, each year, in the Greenwich Village Follies. This season it is the Transformation Scene in the episode "When Dreams Come True." This was designed by Nicholas Vladimir deLipsky, the young Russian artist, and through the harmony of design, color and light, this scene is made possible. Without lowering the proscenium curtain or shifting a foot of scenery, the scene on the stage changes, in a second, from a modern ballroom, to an exterior scene in a romantic land and the costumes of the players as well as the scene change with the transformation. A fanciful touch is given the second of the transformation scenes by the moonlight.

The whole length and breadth of the program this year prevails with satire and humor. Ted Lewis and his band are one of the outstanding features of this third annual production. One of the most amusing episodes is "Arrest Me" in which Joe E. Brown is the principal comedian and is assisted by Robert G. Pitkin. Considered from the viewpoints of humor, beauty, novelty and artistic effectiveness, the entertainment is said to be the best John Murray Anderson has yet devised. His brush is bolder, more sumptuous, more compelling than ever before, the critics say, and this is particularly true of the Snowflake Scene set under the Silver Dome. A fragment of a Paris Apache deviltry is staged with such vividness in the Last Dance that it brings the entire audience to its toes and this scene is made the more striking by later developments of a rollicking travesty on this act in which Joe E. Brown and Gordon Dooley appear. Popular price matinees are given on Wednesday.

In the all star cast are Ted Lewis, Joe E. Brown, Cecil Cunningham, Ula Sharon, Gordon Dooley, Bird Millman, Robert G. Pitkin, Gretchen Eastman, Donald Kerr, June Korle, Valodia Vestoff, Marjorie Burgess, Billye Weston, Nancy Larned, Cora D'Orsay, Basil Smith, Albert Deano, and the 30 artist models, as fascinating a group of young flappers as has been seen in a musical production for many seasons.

WILBUR THEATRE

Not in some years has any book made history as has "Main Street", the novel by Sinclair Lewis which sold over two hundred thousand copies during the first six months it was on the bookstands, and its record as a novel has been closely rivalled by the stage version which the Messrs. Shubert presented at the National Theatre, New York, and which is now at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston.

Theatrical history is constantly in the making, and it was inevitable that a novel of such popularity as "Main Street" would eventually find its way to the spoken stage. Tried out last summer in Indianapolis, by the Stuart Walker Stock Company, with McKay Morris as Doc Kennicott, the play broke all records for business at the Murat theatre and indeed has proven itself a winner straight through. Dramatized by Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, it was presented at the National Theatre, New York, early in the season with Alma Tell and McKay Morris, and is now playing its Boston engagement.

"Main Street" the novel, attained its success because of the universal appeal of the title and the very logic and naturalness of the characters themselves. The play has retained all the delightful honesty of the novel and has been endowed with a fine dramatic strength by the dramatists, who have taken twenty of the important characters and, selecting the big moments, have woven a play which not only realizes the strength and value of the novel, but is frank and colorful, human, and true to the core, and in addition picturesque and amusing.

Alma Tell, as Carol Kennicott, has with fine dramatic sense, built a character of rebellious idealism, aggravating but fascinating, a visualization of the Carol of the book. McKay Morris, as Doc Kennicott, has carved his own niche in the theatre, and although still in his early twenties is considered one of the finest of the young actors on the stage today. Others in the long cast include Norval Keedwell as young Valborg, Charles Bates as his father, Julia MacMahon as Maud Dyer Belle Murry, Marion Hutchins, Clif Heckiner, Ruth G. Clark, Florence MacIvor, William Bonelli, Maud Nolan, Marie Pincard, Hilda Helstrom and Boyd Agin.

Stuart Walker directed the play, and the production is the work of Mabel Buell, the only woman scenic artist in America.

TREMONT TEMPLE

Another famous story by Alexandre Dumas, the French writer, has provided the scenario for a screen production which is now scoring a marked success in its world premiere at the Tremont Temple in Boston. This is the widely-read story "Monte Cristo", said by many yo be a classic of adventure, romance, and love.

The screen version of the story was produced at the William Fox West Coast studios under the direction of Emmett J. Flynn, the man who directed that famous screen comedy "A Connecticut Yankee." "Monte Cristo" is a costly production in ten reels, and will not be shown in New England again this season.

Millions have read the Dumas story of the adventures of Edmond Dantes, the young French sailor of Marseilles, France. The screen version holds quite true to the original story and depicts in a vivid manner the unfaithfulness of Dante's friends; his sentence to prison; his subsequent escape and the revenge which he sought on those who had wronged him. It is possible through the scope of the motion picture camera to carry the audience to France and give such a portrayal of the characters as to make them what the famous Dumas would have had them.

Not the least important in the success of "Monte Cristo" is the all-star cast which handles the various difficult roles. It is headed by John Gilbert, a young actor who may be said to score a personal triumph in this production. The role of Mercedes, Dantes sweetheart, was given to Estelle Taylor—the role of the King's prosecutor to Robert .McKim, well-known screen villain, William V. Mong, one of the most famous of character actors, has the role of Caderousse, the inn-keeper. Spottiswoode Aitken, veteran character actor, has the role of the Abbe Faria who proves to be the benefactor of the young sailor. Other players, wellknown to followers of screen productions, who have important roles, are Virginia Faire, Maud George, George Seigmann, Ralph Cloninger, Albert Prisco, Harry Lonsdale, Gaston Glass, and others. "Monte Cristo" on March 27, starts in on its third successful week at the Tremont Temple. The admission prices are in keeping with the usual prices charged there.

The economic value of a single toad during May, June and July, is $19.44 according to estimates of the Department of Agriculture. This value is based on the toad's destruction of cutworms and other injurious insects.

Siftings

It was a big town meeting, an interesting town meeting, and an entertaining meeting. There was room for everybody either on the floor, on the stage or in the gallery. There were plenty of women in the audience—the word audience is used advisedly as they were all listeners rather than speakers—but the wives who sat with their husbands could be counted on the fingers of one hand, the number of daughters with their fathers actually noted was two—no sons with their mothers.

For the first time probably speakers from the gallery and the stage were recognized by the moderator.

The hall was well filled but we would venture to say that the capacity of the hall was not so severely taxed as it has been at some of the recent minstrel shows.

The voters with their motions were like a woman shopping for a new hat. They tried all shapes and prices—and with the exception of article 15—finally went back to their original choice.

Andover is mentioned as among the most successful postoffices of the second class in the sale of treasury savings certificates during the month of February according to the report just released by F. C. Ayres, Director of the Savings Division of the First Federal Reserve District.

To be exact, $1100 worth of certificates were sold which compares favorably with the results in many first-class offices. Eleven persons in Andover during the past month have recognized the absolute safety of this form of investment and for $80 have purchased a certificate which maturing in five years will then be worth $100.

Next month the Andover office will have on sale dollar certificates which should be popular with those able to save only in small amounts.

Many persons have doubtless forgotten that Andover holds the Essex county cup awarded in 1918 to the town making the best showing in the sale of Thrift and War Savings Stamps. This work with the enthusiasm of war time was carried on under the direction of Frederic G. Moore, chairman. Although Massachusetts did not reach the goal set by the governor, Andover exceeded its quota by ten per cent.

Men have been at work this week repairing the ravages wrought in the park by the ice storm.

The beautiful maple trees in the double row along the Chestnut street side, though badly broken have been so trimmed that when in foliage the beauty of the street will be unimpaired.

It has been necessary to sacrifice four trees, an elm and three Norway maples on Bartlet street. These were broken beyond repair and it is the intention of the tree warden to replace them with good-sized trees of some fast growing variety.

The yellow birches in the group at the upper end of the brook are badly mutilated but they will be saved for the present. Of the three white birches strangely enough two came through scot-free, while the third was snapped o f close to the ground.

The most conspicuous loss is the giant willow whose yellowish green haze of budding leaf and catkin has been for so many years one of the familiar harbingers of spring. Much at home in the damp gutter on Punchard avenue, the tree had flourished until the stump, leveled by the workman's saw, measures four and a half feet across one way and five feet the other. The decision to take the tree down was influenced not only by the fact that the trunk is rotted and hollow, but because the roughness of its bark offers a special attraction for the female gypsy moth. The thousands of eggs deposited on this tree are considered a menace to all the other trees in the vicinity.

Great bonfires of brush glow far into the night and cords more wait the thawing of the ice to be disposed of.

Work on the trees in the school grounds is next on the program.

Class in Current History

The principal events in current history for the past few weeks were presented before a class of thirty by Mrs. Claude U. Gilson at the November clubhouse last Friday afternoon. This was the eighth lecture in a course of ten.

Mrs. Gilson discussed the American method of ratification of treaties with special reference to the four-Power treaty which will probably pass with two more votes than are actually required, not only because of the party majority but because the minority and the people of the country are all pulling in the same direction.

She also touched upon the coming conference at Genoa which though it has changed from its original purpose of considering economic conditions to a political conference, will yet affect our trade relations with Russia.

Mrs. Gilson who spent some time in Germany with the army of occupation gave some interesting deductions from her personal expriences which threw some light on the reasons why American forces are in no haste to withdraw from a territory where they are made extremely comfortable though the $241,000,000 bill to the allied nations for their services is unpaid and the debt continues to increase.

The Panislamic movement as it affects the English political situation in India was the last subject discussed.

Grand Council X. B. K. Officers

At a meeting of the Grand Council of the X. B. K. chapters of the town held at the Free church, officers were elected as follows: Alfred Harris, Grenfell chapter, president; James Schofield, Phillips Brooks chapter, vice president; Melvin Haynes, Abraham Lincoln chapter, secretary; Ralph Morrison, T. K. chapter, treasurer.

A union meeting of all the X. B. K. chapters in town will be held with the Baptist church society in April, the date to be announced later.

Plans were made for a special X. B. K. service at the Free church on Sunday evening, April 9, and it is expected that two speakers from Boston will give addresses.

Water Loan Bill Admitted

The bill under which the town seeks authority to borrow $40,000 outside the debt limit for the purpose ofmaking necessary changes in and extending the present system of water works in the town, has been admitted in the legislature by the committee on rules.

If, as is probable, the legislature, after hearings, passes the bill, the board of public works will install a 10-inch water main in Shawsheen Village to replace the present six-inch main. On account of the rapid growth of Shawsheen Village additional water facilities are imperative to ensure sufficient water for domestic purposes and fire protection.

Rebekahs Hold Mock Marriage

Following the regular meeting of Indian Ridge Rebekah lodge held Monday evening in I. O. O. F. hall, the social committee entertained the gathering by the presentation of a mock marriage. The parts were well taken and the wedding guests were well entertained by the unusual ceremony.

The following persons took part: bride, Miss Grace Lake; groom, Mrs. Anna Elander; best man, Mrs. Samuel Wormald; bridesmaid, Miss Sadie MacLesih; maids of honor, Mrs. Carrie I. Buchan and Mrs. Mary Valentine; ring-bearer, Miss Miriam Dyson; bride's father, Elmer Philbrick; minister, Bertram Stott.

Refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, gelatine and whipped cream were served by the refreshment committee, consisting of Mrs. Cleveland Milnes, Mrs. Jessie Dunwoodie, Mrs. Edward Emslie.

At the 10.30 mass Easter day Father Nugent will wear his new vestments for the first time.

The complete set comprises a cope, veil and benediction stole, chausable and two dalmatics, all heavily embroidered with gold; a red chausable of the 13th century design of red and gold changeable silk and a third chausable of black silk velvet with gold trimmings. All the vestments are of the Roman type or style. The cloth for the red and gold chausable was woven in the convent at Sienna, Italy, where St. Catherine lived during her life.

Father Ngent made the selection while on his tour of Italy with the late Rev. Father John M. Kennedy last summer. The fabric of which the vestments are woven is a white silk with a silver thread running through the cloth and embroidery of gold trimmings.

The vestments are the gift of Mrs. M. J. Curran and family and were made by Alfonso Romanini & Son of Rome, Italy.

Legion Notes

Revision of the constitution and by-laws was the chief business transacted at a lengthy meeting of Andover Post No 8, The American Legion, on Tuesday evening, March 14.

Members expressed their appreciation of the $1500 voted by the town for the upkeep of headquarters. It was decided to retain the present rooms for the time being and to apply the appropriation to the payment of rent, light, and janitor service, now amounting to about $600 for the year, leaving the unexpended balance in the town treasury.

A thirteen star U. S. flag of homespun linen, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Melledge was presented and Comrades Hulme and Madden were appointed to see about securing a glass case for the exhibition and safe keeping of this and other Post flags.

A committee was also appointed to devise ways and means of conducting the membership and service campaign and census of all ex-service men in town requested by the State Department.

Commander Hayes reported on the entertainment provided by the Auxiliary Unit last Sunday for the ex-service men in the Danvers State Hospital.

Get Rid of that Junk

From an editorial in a Boston paper

"JUNK"

"There are two problems before every person: one is to get something to eat; and the other to eliminate thoroughly the waste matter."

"If he is not successful in the first, he will die of hunger. If he is not successful in the second, he will die in one of forty other ways."

The rich and heavy foods of Winter leave the system overloaded with waste matter. This is

THE JUNK OF WHAT YOU HAVE EATEN

Get rid of this waste before the warm weather comes, or

It will poison the blood; produce indigestion and constipation; cause disfiguring eruptions on the face, and result in that weary, worthless, utterly miserable condition known as Spring Fever.

Town Meeting Echoes

More than an idle curiosity prompted the writer several years ago, when visiting the British Museum, to obtain a look at the original Magna Charta.

Only by persistent urging and tactful diplomacy was the writer permitted to look upon this precious parchment which marked the beginning of civil liberty. Andover's Town Meeting grew out of this Magna Charta, and a thousand bloody battlefields bear testimony to its worth. And what a legacy it is! and how highly should we prize it! No channel on earth furnishes so free a flow of popular thought and desires, so completely registers the popular will as the old-fashioned New England Town Meeting. Here, neither race, color, sex nor ignorance, debars one from utterance and a vote. History presents no more tragic and, at the same time, no more inspiring record than that of the struggle and conquest of individual freedom against the powers that would enslave it. Familiar to every voter of Andover is this history. He could not forget it if he would and he would not if he could; it is both his birthright and his joy. This being true, how shall we explain his failure to appreciate and make use of this blood-bought freedom? This failure was conspicuously and lamentably revealed at our last Town Meeting when it was found that of the 3494 registered voters only 700 or 1-5th attended, and of this 700, only one half registered a vote on any of the articles in the warrant. Even when the test vote was taken that decided the expenditure of $100,000 of borrowed money upon a half-mile of public highway only 348, or just one half of the voters present, took their stand for it, while 348 sat tight upon their seats, voting neither for nor against it.

"To claim that only the 4 voters who did stand in opposition, were the only ones in that meeting who really disapproved of the article acted upon, would be manifestly unfair and grossly presumptuous. Among those who refused to vote were scores and scores, if not the whole of them, who before and since Town Meeting have freely confessed their disapproval of the vote as carried. Never since the writer has lived in Andover has he found such a wide-spread disapproval of the extravagant use of the town's money as he finds today. From the most cultured and well-to-do, to the pick and shoveller on our streets, come serious questionings. For it requires no special study of economic science on their part to know that Andover cannot go on increasing her expense to nearly double her increase in taxable property, as she has done for the last ten years ($1.16 expense and 63 cents increase) and charge this excess expenditure back upon Andover's real estate year after year. The most reckless spenders of the town's money will admit that we cannot spend from $30,000 to $50,000 extra year by year forever, or for the next ten years. Nor nor for the next five years without "killing the goose that lays the golden egg." Now all this is clear as noonday to the average voter upon whose shoulders rests the heaviest end of the tax-log, what, therefore, has he to say in justification for his refusal to vote?

Six reasons are adduced for his silence:—

1. Absolute indifference. Personally he has nothing to gain and nothing to lose by any vote of the town. He owns no property, pays only a static poll tax, and is confident his board-bill will be unaffected by Andover's high tax rate.

2. Personal friendships. Many of his friends desire some object and loyalty to them holds in check his preferences. When loyalty to principle and loyalty to friends are in conflict, he favors his friends.

3. Fear. He fears jeopardizing his business. If an employee, he fears to vote contrary to his employer; if a tradesman, he fears the loss of patronage. Loss of employment or loss of trade would be, in his judgment, a greater loss than that imposed by an increased tax levy.

4. A sense of helplessness. He knows how strong is the current that moves with increasing momentum toward extravagance. Each year he sees larger and larger amounts of the town's resources diverted to public uses; he finds this to be nation-wide; he feels that this current must run its popular course till its natural reaction sets in; meanwhile his part is to possess his soul in patience till this popular wave has spent itself. Any effort of his would accomplish nothing and, at the same time, subject him to unpopular criticism, so he, along with so many others, maintains a neutral attitude.

5. Diplomacy. To secure assent to some project of his own he agrees not to vote against the project of the other, however much he personally disapproves of this other's project. This is often the case, and is justified by the non-voter in the belief that the good of his own project more than outweighs the evil of the project of the other, hence he suppresses his vote.

6. Imitators. With no clear-cut convictions of his own, devoid of self-reliance, he watches the drift of the meeting, and invariably casts his vote with the popular side. Scores would have cast their vote directly on the contrary side had certain voters, whose conduct they imitate, so voted. The writer firmly believes that there were twenty men at that meeting who, standing together as a phalanx, could obtain from the town anything they might ask, regardless of the consequences. These are a small minority but they have a host of followers.

To the writer, this shows an amazing indifference on the part of the voters. And it is this indifference which explains the abysmal ignorance of town affairs by so large a number. Full and clear reports are printed each year entailing much labor and expense so that he who runs may read, but how many ever read them? How very few study them?

Now what is the startling result? Such is the present temper of the voters that all the money asked for in the Town Warrant will be granted. This grant will pile up a total indebtedness of over $770,000 a larger debt than is owed, in proportion to valuation, by any other town in our Commonwealth. Our yearly interest charge on this debt will be over $37,000. To form some idea of this interest amount, let it be remembered that it will require, at our present tax rate, twice the increase in taxable property to pay this yearly interest charge alone, than the American Woolen Company have paid in taxes to the town for the last year. To meet this interest charge alone, Mr. Wood would need to build over $1,000,000 of taxable property, and this, were the tax rate $35.00 per thousand. It takes a big lot of taxable property to yield $37,000 a year to the town. Certainly this interest charge, year by year, is not a matter to be trivially tossed aside as utterly inconsequential. Neither is a voter a "pessimist" or a "calamity-howler" who calls our attention to it.

We have come to a stage in our town government when sober thought and cautious and wise action are of vital importance. It behooves every voter to think, and to think clearly, broadly and soundly. Our Town Meeting is our Magna Charta: not much longer shall we have it. All the more need, therefore, that we use it to pry our town upon a level of economical soundness and durability.

Pleasant Birthday Party

A very pretty party was tendered Lyndell Florence Lawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Lawson of Wolcott avenue Tuesday afternoon, March 14, on the occasion of her seventh birthday.

Seventeen of her school mates were entertained from 4 to 6 o'clock. Games were played in the early part of the afternoon and at 5 o'clock supper was served in the dining room. The table was very prettily decorated and each little guest received a favor. The menu included sandwiches, cookies, a birthday cake and ice cream in individual moulds which greatly delighted the young folks.

Miss Lawson was the recipient of many very beautiful gifts.

Those present were Elaine Foxon, Helene Hall, Ruth Pratt, Marjorie Billington, Betty Bliss, Marietta Tower, Constance Wade, Helen Buttrick, Clare O'Connell, Frances McTernen, Eleanor Thompson, Beatrice Healy, Eleanor Winslow, Allan Ward, Jerome Cross, Standish Perkins, Robert Clement, Jr., Russell Lawson, Lyndell F. Lawson and Mrs. Frank Winslow, Mrs. George D. Lawson, Miss Jean Donald and Mrs. David R. Lawson.

An Unusual Week-end Tour

W. H. Foster of Chestnut street has been commissioned to paint a portrait of the Twentieth Century Limited of the New York Central Railroad. In order to obtain material for this picture Mr. Foster spent Saturday, March 11 in New York making studies of the New York Central equipment.

In order to gain a more intimate knowledge of the handling of this famous train Mr. Foster rode on the "Century" locomotive from Harmon, N. Y. to Albany. The steam locomotive No. 3301, a Pacific type weighing 218 tons and having driving wheels eighty inches in diameter took on the train at Harmon that Saturday at 3:44 p. m. six minutes late and arrived at Albany at 5:39; one hundred and ten miles in one hundred and fifteen minutes. This schedule included two speed limit slow-downs and the fact that the "Century" is a very heavy train means that while fully under way the average speed was well over a mile a minute. One mile was checked in forty-eight seconds, or seventy-five miles an hour and there were eleven miles covered at an average speed of over seventy miles an hour.

The following morning the tour was continued on the engines of the Twentieth Century coming east to Boston, the train leaving Albany at 6:45 a. m. and arriving in Boston at noon. From Springfield to Worcester Mr. Foster rode with engineer La Cour who recently established a record from Springfield to Boston with a special train.

Mr. Foster says that although the speed of the New York Central Twentieth Century is tremendous owing to the excellence of the rolling-stock and road-bed this trip is nowhere near as hair-raising as the coast down the eastern slope of the Berkshires at comparatively high speed where the descent averages eighty-seven feet to the mile. He also adds that while the tour of two states on the locomotives of the fastest express trains is an exceedingly interesting experience it could hardly be recommended as a rest cure.

Will Travel Through Yellowstone on Horseback

For the past two years Lawrence V. Roth of the Phillips academy faculty has gotten up a party of boys from Andover to join the Valley Ranch's horseback trip in the Rockies. There are four boys in school now who have been on the trip, the others having gone to college. Mr. Roth is making up a party this year to make the same trip. The booklet of the trip showing pictures of the western country and camp life is being given to interested boys. The horseback outfit including about 35 boys and 15 on the staff cover 600 miles on horseback through the Yellowstone National park and the Jackson Hole country route of the park. The staff includes masters, guides, camp helpers and physician. The boys range from 14 to 19 years of age and most of them have never ridden before. The party leaves New York July first and returns about August 20. The booklet contains a list of the 1920 and 1921 parties, an account of the trip and references besides the pictures.

Local Men Attend Machine Gunners Banquet

Several of Andover's ex-service men were present at the third annual reunion and banquet of the members of Co. B, 302 Machine Gun Battalion held at the Franklin house, Lawrence last Saturday evening. A fine chicken dinner was served.

Men were present from all parts of the state, the following cities and towns being represented: New York City, East Orange, N. J; Brockton, Gloucester, Dorchester, Framingham, Lowell, Groveland, Dracut, Tyngsboro, Collinsville, No. Andover, Lawrence, Methuen, Chelmsford and Andover. Those present from Andover were: Harold Cates, Edward Vannett, Michael Zullas, James Greelish, Alexander M. Ness, Frank P. Markey, John Hartigan, Daniel Hartigan, Thomas Dea and Lt. Augustine Conroy.

A peace-time company was organized and the following officers will serve for the coming year: Frank P. Markey, Andover, Captain; Lt. P. H. Smith of Methuen; Lt. J. McCarthy of North Andover; Lt. W. Francis of Gloucester; Lt. Roth of Dracut; and Lt. Redman of North Andover. P. H. Smith will act in his old capacity of company clerk and all correspondence and dues will be sent to him at his home 57 1-2 Oakland ave., Methuen, Mass. All changes of address, reports of sickness of members or deaths should be sent at once to P. H. Smith or to Frank Markey.

Demands Equal Rights

Arriving at the town hall at 1.40 I was told by the guard at the door that there were no more seats on the floor, but I could find room in the gallery. A man arrived just then to whom the door was at once opened. Equal rights? From my seat in the pestilential quarters already crowded I saw several vacant seats filled one by one by men. There were no men in the gallery. Being a heavy taxpayer I should have been glad to have given my voice as well as vote on the warrant but couldn't have been heard or seen from my position, wedged in by sweltering humanity. Isn't it time something was done to provide accommodations for the doubled electorate, even to the exclusion of Shawsheen Village improvements?

SPANISH INFLUENZA

The U. S. Public Health Service says: "The disease is spread by the breath and secretions of the body, especially of the nose and throat. They recommend that the Nasal passage be coated with a weak solution of Menthol in liquid petroleum as a protective. As Mintol Vapocream is a Menthol Cream, which also contains the Oil of Eucalyptus which proved so effective during the London Epidemic in 1891, and other oils which heal the inflamed mucous membrane and act as an antiseptic. Go to your Druggist at once and get a jar of Mintol and protect the whole family by simply applying Mintol in the nostrils three of four times a day. It is positively the best preventive for Coughs, Colds Catarrh, Head Colds, Grip, Spanish Influenza and to prevent Pneumonia.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Physicians all over the country are daily prescribing for the Spanish Influenza the ingredients used in Mintol Vapocream and they are the remedies that have proven most effective in stamping out this dreaded disease in this country, England and Spain, where the Epidemic originated. It is the best antiseptic for sterilizing the nose and throat of children and grown-ups. Get a jar of Mintol at once. It is as necessary for your protection as insurance on your home.

A Pan-American Conference of Women

President Harding will appoint an official delegate to represent the United States at the Pan-American Conference of Women which has been called by the National League of Women Voters in conjunction with their third annual Convention and is to be held in Baltimore, Maryland from April 20 to 29th. The invitations to the Pan American countries were forwarded by the State Department through its diplomatic representatives, which indicates hearty endorsement of the conference by that Department. It is fitting that this new move in the friendship of the Americas should come from the women of the United States who are organized to "promote education in citizenship and the public discussion of civic reforms."

Abbot Academy Notes

Dean Shailer Matthews of the University of Chicago gave a stirring talk at Chapel on Sunday evening.

School closed Wednesday for the spring recess, and will reopen at 9 a. m. April 6.

Andover's Ability to Pay

We publish in another column a communication from our friend, Mr. Frost. While the editor frequently disagrees with Mr. Frost he always enjoys reading his articles and analyzing his statements. One reason for that pleasure is the unfortunate fact that Mr. Frost is not quite as full and complete in his statements as he should be, particularly when he discusses figures from a comparative standpoint. It is all very well for anybody to state that the town of Andover has "a greater debt than any other town in the State," and it would be possible to make that statement appear fairly near in line with the truth. But taken in connection with all of the facts that go to make up the ability of a community to carry on its improvements, one must consider the situation in exactly the same way that the ability of a great corporation to pay its bills is taken into account when a loan for that corporation is being negotiated.

If a small corporation, with a $40,000 capital and a business of pretty good proportions as compared to that capital, attempted to borrow a million dollars from the First National Bank in Boston, it would have considerable difficulty in negotiating the loan; not because its standard of credit, as compared to its business and capital and all other factors, would be questioned, but the requested loan, which would make a debt for which it would be responsible, would be out of proportion to the other factors. If the United States Steel Corporation went into the market to borrow a million dollars, nobody would give it a second thought, but it would be loaned as a matter of course.

We must, therefore, take into account, in analyzing Mr. Frost's figures and in considering his statements, the strong position of the town of Andover at the present time with regard to the problems it faces. There is hardly a single town, if there is one in the entire State, possessing a water system, a sewerage system, improved highways, a fair portion of improved sidewalks, efficient lighting, a school department thoroughly equipped with buildings and highly organized, an efficient fire department, all of which go to make up the modern community and the service it is dependent upon, with a tax rate as low, a valuation not excessive, and even though the last town appropriations were heavy, a burden of debt which it is able to bear, to surpass the town of Andover.

Let us take a few examples from the $10,000,000 towns and think it out a bit.

Town	Valuation	Debt	Tax Rate
Braintree	$12,000,000	Over $100,000	$30.00
Barnstable	10,670,000	65,000	28.60
Athol	9,000,000	355,000	31.80
Clinton	12,000,000	213,500	26.00
Concord	8,000,000	392,000	34.00

Not a town in the entire group that has the things to make of it a modern community comparable with the possessions of the town of Andover! And not a town in the group that can begin to show the increasing earning power as a town that Andover can show.

Now what is meant by the increasing earning power as above referred to? It is high time that the town of Andover has some conception of the positive value contained in the development that is under way. Some captious critics will be quick to insist that what follows represents a prejudiced attitude on the part of the writer toward the development that is going on in Shawsheen Village. Let that be as it may, there is no thought of dealing in any commodity here at the present time but facts.

Before the present development in Shawsheen Village is completed there is pretty sure to be crowded in that section of the town a property with an assessable value ranging all the way from three to five million dollars, and if a complete development takes place, as has sometimes been in the mind of those responsible for it, a much greater investment would be made. Taking it at the three million dollar figure as a taxable value, when that actually exists the town will be able to assess at a rate of $25 a thousand an annual taxable income of $75,000. Of that $75,000, $15,000 may be immediately set aside as a five per cent annual interest charge upon $300,000 of bonded indebtedness to take care of the improvements made necessary for the exclusive service of Shawsheen Village developments. We don't believe that that development will call for any bonded indebtedness in excess of this amount of $300,000 under any possible present outlook, and we therefore believe that the setting aside of this $15,000 is ample. There will then be left for annual maintenance charges of town service $60,000 per year.

Again we would like to ask where it is possible for an excess of cost to be placed upon the town on account of the things that now face us as a necessary part of the Shawsheen development beyond the annual $60,000 that would thus be available on a twenty-five dollar rate. Further, with all due respect to some of those who would state differently, the writer is willing to go on record in print as expressing a belief that this $60,000 per year, based upon a moderate rate of tax, will be ample to care for the annual needs of this new development.

The above is all based upon a three million dollars investment. If that investment shall reach to the amount of five million dollars it will be largely a more intensive development without the corresponding increase for highways, sewers, water and various other things where the large initial cost will be taken care of upon the basis of the original figures of three million dollars. As it goes beyond the five million dollars, the town's gain will be even more definite.

This situation makes for Andover an ability to pay, of large proportions, and a corresponding responsibility to discharge its obligations due to all of the conditions that produce this ability to pay. How foolish for us or for any of our citizens to attempt to hold the town to the restrictions imposed by the old order of things, when ability and responsibility have been changed by the distinctly new order of things! Hence our correspondent goes far afield when he argues for a policy of retrenchment that entirely fails to understand present conditions, and demands incident to present conditions.

Local Interest in Presentation of Jeremiah

Dr. Doremus Scudder who is well known in Andover is the general manager of the five-act religious drama "Jeremiah" which is to be presented by leading Boston ministers in the National theatre, Boston on May 4 and 5. Mrs Scudder (Miss Mabelle Bosher) a former Abbot teacher will take the part of Jeremiah's mother.

The cast includes ministers of all creeds and faiths. The part of Nebuchadnezzar will be taken by Dr. Albert Peterson of the Brookline Unitarian church who is "every inch a King" and stands 6 feet 4 inches.

The play will be one of the biggest things ever attempted by the Federation of the Greater Boston churches and has the backing of the ministers of all the churches including Rabbi Harry Levy of Temple Israel.

November Club Entertained by Dramatic Department

The annual entertainment by the dramatic department of the November club took place on Monday afternoon when two one-act plays, "The Silver Lining" by Constance D'Arcy Mackay and "The Fairy Poodle", adapted from the story by Leonard Merrick by Mrs. Douglas Crawford were presented.

The first play was a scene between Fannie Burney and her Uncle Richard, the authorship of "Evelina" being the subject of the dialogue which was in verse. Though Uncle Richard vowed that" Only men had strength of mind to wield a pen" the discovery that his modest little niece had received 200 pounds for her manuscript made him admit that blue stockings might have a silver lining.

The charming costumes of the period and the candle-lighted stage setting added to the interest of the sketch. The momentary appearance of the old servant Cephas, whose make-up was a complete disguise is worthy of mention.

This play was managed by Miss Bell J. Butterfield. The cast of characters was as follows:

Fanale Burney	Mrs. Henry S. Hopper
Richard Burney	Mrs. E. Victor Bigelow
Cephas	Miss Mary W. Bell

With the exception of Mrs. McCurdy the characters in the second play were new to the November club stage. Mrs. Donald Appleton was a charming and vivacious Juliette, playing the part of the girl wife to her artist husband, Julien. A turn in the fortunes of the young dreamers comes with the finding of the fairy poodle, Fifi. A commission from its owner, the Countesse de grand Ecusson to paint its portrait so softens the heart of the virago, their concierge, most spiritedly played by Mrs. J. Harry Kidder, that an excellent supper is forthcoming, the immediate future is provided for, and they are no longer obliged to live on love and kisses. The manager of this play was Mrs. Douglas Crawford. The cast of characters was as follows:

The two children:

Juliette, a writer of fairy stories — Mrs. Donald Appleton

Julien (her husband) an artist — Mrs. Alden Foss

The Concierge—Madame Cockard — Mrs. J. Harry Kidder

The Old Clo'Man — Mrs. Matthew McCurdy

The Fairy—Madame la Comtesse de grand Ecusson — Mrs. Francis Keaney

The Poodle — Fifi

During intermission Miss Virginia Mac Knight sang a group of three songs, "Rain" "I am a Butterfly" and "You and I." She responded to an encore with "My Laddie."

A notice of the Farm and Garden conference to be held April 3, will be found elsewhere in these columns.

To Give Talk on Town Planning

An event particularly appropriate to the spring season will be the Farm and Garden conference to be held at the November clubhouse on Monday, April 3 between the hours of eleven o'clock and four.

The principal speaker of the day will be Percival Gallagher, a member of the firm of Olmstead Brothers, landscape architects of Brookline. Mr Gallagher will take as his subject "Town Planning" illustrating his talk with stereopticon pictures of Forest Hills, a New York suburb.

The conference will open at eleven o'clock when the exhibitors will give introductory talks about their various exhibits. This will be followed by suggestions on the planning and planting of a perennial garden by Miss Katherine Selden.

Local amateurs will give five-minute talks on their garden experiences with flowers, birds, and bees.

At one o'clock the usual cateteria luncheon will be served. All visitors of the conference should plan not to miss this social hour with the added opportunity to examine the exhibits.

The afternoon session will open with greetings from the National Farm and Garden association brought by Miss Helen Holmes of Kingston. Miss Holmes is herself a practical farmer raising vegetables and flowers for the summer trade on the South shore. She has been a speaker at a Farm and Garden conference on a previous occasion.

At three o'clock Mr. Gallagher will deliver his lecture on town planning.

The complete program is as follows:

MORNING

11.00. Introduction to exhibits by some of the exhibitors.

11.15. The planning and planting of a perennial garden.
Miss Katherine Selden

11.45. Garden experiences.
Five-minute talks by a group of local amateurs.

AFTERNOON

1.00. Cafeteria.

2.30. National Farm and Garden Association report.
Miss Helen Holmes

3.00. Forest Hills, a garden suburb of New York. Illustrated by steriopticon.

Persons having articles to exhibit should confer with Mrs. William A. Trow. The clubhouse will be open to receive them on Saturday afternoon from one o'clock to three and on Monday morning after 8.30. Mrs. Le Boutillier who has charge of the decorations will also be glad to receive at that time pots of flowering bulbs or shrubs forced for decoration.

The members of the committee in charge of the conference are Mrs. James C. Sawyer, chairman; Mrs. William A. Trow, Mrs. Addison B. LeBoutillier, Mrs. John M. Stewart, and Mrs. George L. Selden.

A new wood-preserving proc ps employed in Germany consists of a hyeod ermic injection of a protective antis ptic in the freshly felled tree-trunk while it is still in the forest. The highly concentrated mixture quickly spreads through the tree tissues of the trunk by diffusion, as the tree is still full of sap.

Culvert Will be Built Under Chestnut Street

A contract for building a culvert under Chestnut street beyond Avon has been awarded to Philip L. Hardy. This culvert will take the place of the one which formerly carried the surface water from Abbott's field before the land was opened up for building lots. A drain will run through the Hardy land on the south side of Chestnut street into Rogers brook.

This arrangement was made previous to the annual town meeting. The Board of Public works will make a complete survey of the conditions on East Chestnut street in season to report at the next town meeting.

Brush Fires

Three brush fires occurred Sunday, but were put out with no damage to property. The first at 12.30 o'clock was at Carter's corner back of Dyer's house. The second still alarm took some men to the Catholic church cemetery. A number of graves were burned over but the fire was put out before reaching the woods.

The third alarm was about 3.25 o'clock when the department was called out to a brush fire in the rear of M. M. Converse's house on Wildwood road.

MARY A. BALLARD

On Sunday last occurred the death of Miss Mary A. Ballard of this town at her home on Main street. She was the last of her name in a family that has been identified with this town and vicinity for generations. She was born in 1828 in the old farmhouse that formerly stood on the old Wilmington Road, the daughter of Joshua Ballard and Phoebe Abbott, and Friday of this week would have been her ninety-fourth birthday. Later she settled at the corner of Main street and Punchard avenue where it was her delight to bring back to Andover hosts of friends and relatives to whom the old town was a real haven of rest and delight.

As her life was intertwined with all that was best and typical of an ideal New England town, so it was with her church, the Old South, in which she grew up and lived and which she loved as her own. Here her quiet charities commenced, later to extend to various Southern interests and schools, and to many Christian efforts in foreign lands.

Her most immediate relatives remaining are Edward H. Chandler of Andover, Gayton Ballard Ellis of New York, William Young Chandler of New York, the two former being grandnephews and the latter a great-grandnephew.

Services were conducted at her home Wednesday afternoon by her pastor, Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, and she was buried in the Old South cemetery.

The following poem was written by a friend about two years ago about Miss Mary A. Ballard at a time when it was thought that her end was near and is strangely prophetic of this past winter's damaging work and her own demise. We take it that the "encircling vine" refers to the devoted friend and, we might say almost, daughter, who has been with her for the past thirty five years.

OLD AUNT MARY

Our dooryard elm, complacently
You wave your grey locks to and fro,
Accepting bounty from the sky
And homage from us here below:
Filling your place
With unassuming grace,
Not overeager for His sign,
Nor overthankful, yet divine.

Our Mary grew along with you:
You gained from her strong tenderness,
And she from you her calmness drew—
Each giving, neither had the less.
You just an elm,
And she, in woman's realm,
Tried only quietly to be
A perfect thing for God to see.

But we are fretful lest she lean
Too low as winter's rough winds blow;
Yet you preserve a placid mien
And something deeper seem to know;
Soothingly sway
And always seem to say,
"Be calm, encircling vine—
God has most sweet design;

"Or if a stronger breath from Heaven
Descends and bends your Mary down,
Breaks down your elm to the ground even,
Weep not, weep not, nor fret nor frown:
Old elms need rest,
And so with her, it's best.
Strong vine about our Mary be
As I'm a tree—contentedly."

Stores are Cutting Gingham Handkerchiefs

In some stores handkerchief departments are cutting up fine-grade ginghams in small, check patterns into squares of handerchief size and stamping them with initials for embroidering. They are selling freely to customers who do the embroidering and hemming or other edge-finishing, and bring an aggregate price considerably in excess of that paid for the same goods by the yard in the washgoods department.

While the handkerchiefs are made of gingham in many colors, those of pink and pale blue easily take their place at the top.—Dry Goods Economist.

Reduction in Street Car Fares

Although there will be no reduction in the cash fare from Andover to Lawrence which remains at 20 cents, the fare reduction announced by the Eastern Massachusetts street railway effective April 2, benefits Andover patrons in some zones particularly the purchasers of special ride tickets.

The new rate in the central zone which includes Andover is 17 rides for $1.00 with a 5 cent rebate, which makes the round trip to Lawrence a trifle over 22 cents. Shawsheen Village will benefit by the new rates when a 12-ride ticket for $1.00 good between Shawsheen Village center and the Bay State building, Lawrence, goes into effect. The cash fare from Andover hill to Weare street, Lawrence has been reduced to 10 cents and the 17-ride ticket is good in this zone. The cash fare from Baker's turnout to Elm square which was formerly twenty cents has been reduced to ten cents.

Pythians Hold Banquet and Roll Call

The thirteenth anniversary of Garfield lodge, 172, K. of P., Andover's youngest fraternal organization, was celebrated on Tuesday evening by a banquet followed by after-dinner speeches, roll call and entertainment.

One hundred members were present. Special guests included Grand Vice Chancellor Harry R. Lawrence of the domain of Massachusetts and Deputy Grand Chancellor Edward H. Hoswell of Quindaro lodge, Lawrence.

The banquet was held in Garfield hall and was served by Caterer Wiegel of Lawrence. James C. Souter, P. C., toastmaster at the very outset reminded the Knights that one of the most enthusiastic members, Fred Adams, because of a serious accident was unable to be present.

Henry Todd brought greetings and a token from Knight Adams and later in the evening a delegation of Knights visited him and exemplified the true Damon and Pythias spirit of friendship.

Grace was said by Dr. Elwin D. Lane and ample justice was done to the excellent menu which comprised grapefruit, chicken pie, green peas, mashed potatoes, queen olives, relishes, banana fritters, rolls, coffee, ice cream, fancy cookies and cake and cigars.

Following the banquet Toastmaster Souter called the roll and a very large percentage of the members responded, while messages were received from others.

Through the courtesy of Andover lodge I. O. O. F., the entertainment was held in their hall and the program of music and readings was greatly enjoyed.

Deputy Grand Chancellor Edward H. Hoswell of Lawrence was the first speaker and he congratulated Garfield lodge on attaining its 13th birthday. He spoke of the fine work done by the lodge in these years and hoped for greater progress in the years to come. He was certain that Garfield lodge could show growth by the cooperation of the members and only in this way could it hope for success. D. G. C. Hoswell closed with the reading of a humorous poem "St. Peter at the Gate."

Grand Vice Chancellor Lawrence was given an ovation when he entered and was presented by Toastmaster Souter as the next Grand Chancellor of the domain of Massachusetts, and the noted guest gracefully acknowledged the compliment.

Grand V. C. Lawrence told a very interesting story of Pythianism from its inception during the dark days near the end of the Civil war, to the present day and of its wonderful growth from a handful of friends grouped around Justice Rathbone at Washington to its army of 1,000,000 men today practicing and spreading the Damon and Pythias spirit of friendship.

He said that it was significant that this order, purely an American product, founded on the cornerstone of friendship, was born in Washington and in the month of February which had given birth to men great in the annals of American history. It was in February that Washington, the Father of his Country first saw the light of day. It was in February that Benjamin Franklin was born, and in the same month was given to America and to the world that man of sorrow, who carried on his shoulders the burdens of a tired and war-weary people, Abraham Lincoln, the emancipator and the savior of his country. All of these men had honors thrust upon them, but when the hour of testing and trial came for them to decide whether they should take the easy road or accept the challenge of fighting for mankind they quickly chose the latter.

The order of the Knights of Pythias although one of the youngest ranks third in the country. It progress has been remarkable and the reason is not far to seek. It gives something worth while to its members putting into their lives, the lives of the ordinary man, a spirit of friendship that makes it easier to fight the battles of life. It stands for law and order, for flag and country and its patriotism stood the acid test in '98 and again in '17. It is not a religion but it goes hand in hand with religion and practices and speaks friendship not only among its members but in the community and the world.

The entertainment was given by well-known talent.

Miller outside guard; William Walker, pianist; Henry W. Miller, trustee for 3 years; James C. Souter, P. C., representative to Grand Lodge for two years; alternate, George J. York, P. C.

Woman's Club Social and Supper

A very pleasant social was held last evening when the young people of the Woman's club of Andover Grange entertained the members and their friends.

An appetizing supper was served by the committee followed by an excellent entertainment in charge of Mrs. Hubert Mayo.

Salvatore Catanzara of Shawsheen Village, who is fast gaining recognition as a violinist, delighted the large audience with his playing and showed marked ability for one so young. Miss Veeda Catanzara shared the honors with her brother, as accompanist. James Nezenti another youthful violinist was heard to fine advantage in the trio "Love and Devotion," a number that brought forth volumes of applause. Miss Helen Williams delighted her hearess by her pleasing readings and monologues. Miss Margaret Buchan appeared in a moonlight dance, a very pretty feature. A character song and dance by Miss Buchan and Miss Florence Swanson greatly amused the audience with cleverly given impersonations of Katie O'Connors and Francis, her beau. Dancing and whist followed.

The Woman's club will hold a sewing meeting Tuesday afternoon at Grange hall. A food sale will be held in Playdon's store Friday afternoon, March 21 from 2 to 5 o'clock.

The Caruso Fund National Committee is collecting a $1,000,000 fund, to be known as the Caruso American Memorial Foundation. This fund is to be used in assisting deserving young musicians through scholarships and for the promotion of musical appreciation. One-half the income of the fund is to be used in promoting musical appreciation and the other half in making scholarship awards. Half the scholarship award will be applied to instrumental students and composition and the remainder to voice culture.

A possible tax eradicator, a municipally owned oil well, has started a flow of finances into the city treasury of Long Beach, California. A contract was made by Long Beach with a California oil company for the sale of 15,000 barrels of oil, the city's first allotment of the production. The well produces between 500 and 600 barrels a day, the operating company getting 60 per cent and the city the remainder.

Interesting Items From the County School at Hathorne. Helpful Hints to Farmers

Farmers' Day

Over 1000 guests attended Farmers' Day at the School on Thursday, March 16. They found much to study and enjoy in the speaking program and the exhibits.

In the 30-ear class tested for germination. Andrew S. Longfellow of Groveland took the sweep-stakes prize. His corn germinated 100 per cent, a record which he has held for three years. He also won the 10-ear class. Hazel Albertson of West Newbury made a very creditable showing. Elbridge Noyes of Newbury was the largest prize winner, having taken 6 prizes in 4 classes.

On Farmers' Day the girls of the Home-making department demonstrated some simple ways of making plackets, seams and the finishing of undergarments, which were greatly appreciated by many women of the county who attended the meeting. They also demonstrated "Three minute mayonnaise," soap and silver polish, which were also helpful suggestions to the many who watched the work. The school keeps in touch with the latest homemaking ideas in sewing, cooking and millinery. Visitors are always very welcome.

Carl Stanton of the Class of 1916 has just been appointed superintendent of a large private estate in Manchester. He is one of the very successful graduates, leaving a good position at Falmouth to come back to his home section. Mr. Stanton entered the school from Beverly.

Notes

On Farmers' Day, Miss Ethel Browne, head of the sewing department, gave a very instructive and interesting talk on Spring millinery, to an audience of over two hundred women.

Instructor Stowell spoke before the Chebacco-Pomona Grange on March 15. Subject, "The Home Vegetable Garden."

Instructor Meigs spoke on "Orcharding" before the North Andover Grange, March 21.

At a recent meeting of the Athletic Association, it was voted to award varsity "E's" to the girls who have played on the basketball team during the season.

The basketball team of the girls' department will play Lawrence, at Lawrence Y. W. C. A. on Tuesday, March 28.

Seasonal Notes

Grape vines should be pruned at once. If this operation is delayed serious results may follow from bleeding which attends late pruning.

The dormant lime sulphur spray in addition to destroying scale and disease, often destroys egg clusters like tent caterpillar and tussock moth.

Farmers will secure good returns by testing their seed. A little work now may save great loss later. Write us if you need assistance along this line.

The practise of burning over grassland and lawns should be discouraged. It is very wasteful of plant food and is not attended by good results.

Schools for the children of migratory laborers were recently opened in the San Joaquin Valley of California. These schools will follow the laborers from place to place as they move from one harvest to another in search of employment. The last California legislature provided for the establishment of the schools, and they are conducted by the state department of education.

St. Patrick's Night Supper

The supper and an entertainment following the regular meeting of the Free church Ladies' Benevolent society held last Friday afternoon were most successful and the attendance was the largest of the season.

Green predominated in the table decorations, green candles and green shades being used, and the same color scheme was carried out as far as possible in the menu which consisted of meat loaf, salmon salad, relishes, pickled beets, rolls, pies of every description and coffee. The supper was served by Mrs. William J. Mitchell, Miss Alice Weare and Mrs. George A. Christie, assisted by Lewis Paine who had charge of the coffee.

The entertainment held in the parish house at eight o'clock was given by the Grenfell chapter of the X. B. K. The first number on the program was "Bowdoin Beata" sung by Rev. F. A. Wilson and Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock accompanied by Mrs. F. A. Wilson. In response to hearty applause they also sang "Lord Geoffrey Amherst."

The boys of the chapter presented a farce: "Wanted a Confidential Clerk."

The cast:

Jonathan Dobbs	Francis Perot
Fat McCormick	John Caldwell
Horatio Lushington	Geoffrey Nicoll
Charles Valentine	James Souter
Dick Sharpe	Henry Otis
Henry Dalton	Herbert Otis

The boys then sang one of their X. B. K. songs and this was followed by several readings by Francis Verigan, the winner of the first Draper prize at Phillips academy who gave the following selections: "Knee Deep in June," "An Italian At a Flower Shop" and "Lasca."

The entertainment closed with another X. B. K. song.

Community Service

The Union Community service which was held in the Congregational church last Sunday evening proved to be a fine practical talk, by Justin E. Varney, cashier of the Bay State National bank of Lawrence.

He deplored the fact that we neglect our duties to the church and called on the people to arouse themselves and sacrifice pleasure for the work of the Master.

"This is not the first time that this country has been in this condition, turn back in history about 120 years and you will find the same conditions existing then. But God in his goodness is keeping watch and will save us." His closing thought was: "If we are loyal to the Master he will be loyal to us."

Safety of Investment Appreciated

Reports of sales of Treasury Savings Certificates for February received by F. C. Ayres, Director Savings Division, First Federal Reserve District, indicates the appreciation of the people of the many advantages offered by the U. S. Treasury Department in connection with this new security.

The postmasters of the state have been uniformly successful in interesting their patrons and it is evident that as a general proposition this method of financing the millions of the 1918 issue of War Savings Stamps now outstanding and which are due on January 1, 1923 is a success.

Among the post offices of the first class having the best records may be mentioned Springfield, reporting over $10,000; Lynn with nearly $7500; while Lowell and Fall River show about $5000 each.

The post offices of the second class show sales in varying amounts up to $1000 or more with Andover among the most successful.

Many post offices of the third class report sales of from $500 to $1000, with Harry I. Johnson, postmaster of Medway, and M. D. E. Tower, postmaster of Becket among the most successful. The distribution of stocks of certificates to postmasters of the fourth class has been delayed owing to an inadequate supply, but even in the face of this handicap, mention should be made of the work of Postmaster C. M. Everett of Bolton who has made a good record.

As an index to the industrial conditions of the state, it is interesting to note that many post offices have been successful in selling large amounts of Postal Savings Certificates, the heaviest sales having been made at Springfield, Lynn, Lowell, Norwood, Fall River, Fitchburg, Lawrence, Worcester, New Bedford and Maynard.

These are all manufacturing centers and the inference is obvious that the wage earning classes of our commonwealth appreciate the facilities for safety offered by the U. S. Government.

NORTH ANDOVER

Peter Holt, selectman of North Andover, at the annual town meeting Saturday spoke at length to the voters on Samuel D. Stevens, recently deceased, who for many years was a prominent citizen of the town. Mr. Holt presented his remarks not as a town official but as an old resident himself. He said: "Let me refer at this time to the memory of a good citizen, Samuel D. Stevens.

"No one who has followed town affairs these last 40 years can fail to realize the conscientious care with which our friend cast his votes for officers, and gave his influence in this annual meeting of ours. Let me recall that he never missed a town meeting until when in recent years considerations of health forced him reluctantly to be away in March. While never seeking office, there was no service for his town which he did not willingly undertake.

"He was a member of our early advisory board. For years he served as a library trustee. During the war he bore the arduous duties of chairman of the public safety committee. As president and director he gave permanence and stability to the Village Improvement society at a time when its service to the community was hardly appreciated. He was the founder and moving spirit of the historical society, an organization which in his hopes and plans was to preserve the traditions and continuing interest of North Andover.

"In all these activities Mr. Stevens' incentive was loyalty to his town and fellow townsmen. His faith in the spirit of democracy which underlies our New England town government, makes it seem to me appropriate to refer to him now in this intimate way."

On motion of the town clerk it was voted that these remarks be adopted as a resolution and spread upon the records of the town.

The gift of a piece of land by the Tavern Land company to the town for a war memorial is much appreciated. As the result of this gift the selectmen drew up a motion that the company be publicly and officially thanked. This statement, made through Peter Holt as chairman, was as follows:

To the Citizens in Annual Meeting
March, 1922

At a special meeting of the town held October 3, 1921, the Tavern Land company offered to dedicate to the town a part of its land as a Patriot's Memorial park, and as a permanent place of rest and recreation. The offer was unanimously accepted, and your selectmen were instructed to present to this meeting a vote in recognition of the gift.

In performance of its undertaking the Tavern Land company, by deed dated March 13, 1922, conveyed to the inhabitants of the town of North Andover, the area of land shown on its plan of 'Tavern Acres' as a 'Reservation,' comprising approximately two and three quarters acres, bounded by Main street, Park Way, Bradstreet road, Greene and Davis streets.

In compliance with your instructions, the selectmen have prepared the vote which I now present in the form of the following:

Motion. That the town desires to express its sense of the generosity and public spirit of the Tavern Land company in making the gift of a Memorial park referred to in the foregoing report; and to voice its sympathy with the purpose of the gift as set forth in the original offer of dedication.

Respectfully submitted,
Selectmen of North Andover.

NATURE'S TRAIL

his hearers that with the exception of one or two varieties, snakes were quite harmless and might even be cherished as pets.

Masses of New England aster, banks of fern, the water lily floating on the pond, the carniverous pitcher plant, the odd flower of the jack-in-the-pulpit, the ghost-like Indian pipe, the delicate wild rose were among the flowers shown.

Some very beautiful winter scenes when nature is mantled in ice and snow were no less beautiful than those showing her in the brilliant colors of the other seasons. Interesting tracks and trails of the wild creatures showed that there was life in the winter woods.

Mr. Townsend concluded his lecture with pictures of birds feeding in winter and made an appeal to his hearers to help in preserving the birds, encouraging them to nest about the home grounds by feeding them in winter, by providing nesting boxes and bird baths in spring and summer.

Preceding the lecture, the president of the society, Omar P. Chase named the following persons as a nominating committee: Miss Clara Putnam, Winthrop S. Boutwell and Jonathan E. Holt.

The Druggist Tried It On Himself

A Well Known Pharmacist Thought He Would See What Cerizane Was Good For And It Cured His Cold

Mr. E. W. Keyes has been for thirty-five years a resident of Auburndale, Massachusetts, where he is a well-known druggist. Suddenly, through exposure, he found himself coughing severely; a dry, hard cough, with the customary sore throat and hoarseness. He feared he might have pneumonia. He was pretty well acquainted with the different cough medicines in his store, but he says, "I knew the reputation of Cerizane, and I knew that the Wincol goods had been made for years, with the first thought being quality, so when I suddenly found myself in such bad shape, I took down a bottle of Cerizane, and took a few doses. Its effect was very agreeable indeed, and I speedily felt improvement. Before a bottle was taken my cough had stopped, my temperature had become normal and I was fully on the road to recovery. I do not hesitate to recommend Cerizane Cough Balsam to my customers."

What Mr. Keyes says about Cerizane is true. It has been made for ninety-five years by the Wilson family of Boston. It has helped millions and hurt none. It contains no chloroform, narcotics or other harmful drugs.

Cerizane may be had of any druggist.

Lenten Missionary Rally

The annual all-day missionary rally held at the South church March 16, was the third and most successful of such gathering of women from all of Andover's protestant churches who are interested in missionary work either near at home or in distant lands.

The morning session was devoted to a conference of the churches on the general topic "Our Larger Needs" followed by three short addresses on work for girls in Andover and the near-by cities of Lowell and Boston. The devotional service at noon was led by Mrs. Cornelius Patton, president of the Woman's Home Missionary society of Boston.

A song service in which the singing was led by Mrs. Frederic G. Moore opened the afternoon session. Mrs. Philip Ripley presided at the piano. Missionary Work in China was presented by Miss Laura D. Ward of Diongloh, China, and Mrs. Hannah Hume Lee, association secretary for the Woman's Board of Missions in Boston, spoke on the work in India where she was stationed for fifteen years.

The meeting opened at half past ten with Mrs. John V. Holt, chairman of the missionary committee of the Woman's Union of the South church presiding.

Each one of the eight representatives from Andover's Protestant churches made a definite contribution of value to the conference on "Our Larger Needs". The speakers were as follows: Mrs. Frank T. Carlton of the South church, "The Need of Vision; Mrs. Frank Hardy of the West church, "The Need of the Larger Heart, the Kindlier Hand;" Mrs. Charles Davies of Ballardvale, "The Need for Fellowship in Service;" Mrs. M. W. Stackpole of the Phillips academy church, "The Need for Intelligent Stewardship;" Mrs. George Winslow of Shawsheen Village, "The Need for Erecting Christian Guide posts; Mrs. Henry Jenkins of the Baptist church, "The Need for Far-reaching Iterests;" Mrs. Harry A. Ramsdell of the Free church, "The Need of Intensive Christian Work in Massachusetts;" Mrs. C. W. Henry of Christ church, "The Need of a Broader Humanity and a Deeper Christianity."

Mrs. Sidney Lovett who has recently become the wife of the pastor of the Mt. Vernon street church in Boston, and who, as Miss Ruth Parker, was a successful worker at camp Andover, told of that interesting enterprise carried on in our midst for several summers. Mrs. Lovett spoke of the great value to the girls of the camp life and of the Camp Andover spirit which set a very high standard. She expressed the wish that such an opportunity might be given to many more girls.

Miss Anne P. Hinks, executive secretary of the Bethesda society of Boston gave a realistic picture of the strange problems to be solved by social workers, particularly those which occur in her work for younger girls.

The various ways in which a policewoman may co-operate with the existing agencies for good in any city was interestingly told by Miss Emily N. Skilton of Lowell. The help of a woman is imperative in many cases. Miss Skilton is also closely connected with the work of the Florence Crittenton society.

The story of the "hobble-footed and the hide-bound" among whom she worked in Diongloh, a town in southern China, was told by Miss Laura D. Ward. The American Board maintains five different centers in China, two in the north and three in the south. It is in this latter section in a small town not far from Foochow that Miss Ward worked among a farming people who are still so backward that foot-binding and the slavery of little girls are still common practices. The message of Christianity has opened a new world, particularly to the women, who were slaves to customs sanctioned by the teachings of Confucius. Now is a crucial time in China. Teachers, education and the material benefits of the West are valueless without the steadying power of Christianity. The young people of China are at the present time swept by a wave of loyalty and love of country and Miss Ward thanked the women of the Congregational churches of Andover who, by their contributions, are making it possible for her to work shoulder to shoulder with these young people who to fulfill their ardent desire to serve their country, must also serve Christ.

The last speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Hannah Hulme Lee who spoke on "Christian Co-operation in India." Though herself a Congregationalist she paid generous tribute to the work being done in India by Methodists, Baptists and Episcopalians. Where there is lack of money, staff, or equipment, whether for kindergartens, training schools or colleges or hospitals, the various denominations co-operate to the best of their ability for the good of the common cause for which they are all working. This is equally true whether the work be educational or evangelical.

Even the barriers of caste and many different languages are obstacles which are being overcome. The Indian National Missionary Society formed in 1915 has members from eight different provinces speaking as many different languages.

Mrs. Lee believes that the great hope of the country lies in the work of the Indian Christian colleagues who contribute an ardor and passionate devotion to the cause of Christ.

A hymn, "In the Secret of His Presence" written by an Indian Christian woman was sung by Mrs. Frederic G. Moore. Mrs. Henry C. Sanborn acted as her accompanist.

During the intermission at noon there was a basket luncheon. Small tables decorated with daffodils were arranged in the small vestry and coffee was served by the women of the South church.

Luncheon arrangements were in charge of Miss Madeleine Hewes, and the decorations were in charge of Mrs. Frederic G. Moore.

A special lunch was served to the speakers and other invited guests. Those seated at the speakers' table included Miss Anne P. Hincks, Miss Emily Skilton, Mrs. Sidney Lovett, Miss Laura D. Ward, Mrs. Hannah Hulme Lee, Mrs. Charles E. Miller of Medford, Mrs. Edward S. Gould of Lawrence, Mrs. Benjamin Smith of Lawrence, Mrs. John White of Wakefield, Rev. and Mrs. E. Victor Bigelow, Miss Bertha Bailey, Miss Mary Alice Abbott and Mrs. John V. Holt.

At the close of the program there was a reception to the guests of the day and an added opportunity for the women from the different churches to become better acquainted. Those who received were, Mrs. John V. Holt, Mrs. E. V. Bigelow, Miss Mary Alice Abbot and Miss Bertha Bailey. Name cards provided by Mrs. V. D. Harrington and her committee made sociability easy.

Andover Suffers Double Defeat from Exeter

Andover closed its winter athletics Saturday with a double defeat by Exeter. The basketball team went down fighting in a hair-raising game 27-24 while the swimmers, after losing the relay by a scant yard were hopelessly outclassed by the Crimson mermen, 46-7. It was the worst defeat ever given the Blue since swimming became a recognized sport at Andover.

The basketball game was a thriller in the second period and Andover outscored her opponents, 18-17 but the four point lead gained by Exeter in the opening half was sufficient. It was the most bitterly contested game on the Andover floor for many years but the basketball was not of the highest order by either team. All of the players were visibly nervous in the first half and Andover failed to score a basket by trying too many long shots. Time and again they had chances to carry the ball to Exeter's end but seemed dazed and continually threw from midfield. Exeter also tried long shots and scored three baskets. Their forwards followed up well and often had a clear field but were poor shots. Exeter with its chances in the first half should have scored 20 points.

The second half was different with the score 10-6 against the Blue, the fight was carried to Exeter's end and in a short time Andover led 13-12, Frank Lackey being the means. Excitement grew intense and Exeter again asserted itself, taking the lead and keeping it to the end. Near the close the excitement was at fever heat and with three seconds to go Exeter led 25-24. Hatcher however put the score beyond doubt by shooting a basket.

The summary:

EXETER	ANDOVER

Eighth Annual Farmers' Day and Corn Show at Essex County Agricultural School, Hathorne

A real spring day, blue skies, the tang of the warming mother-earth with its pleasant spring greetings, reasonably good traveling, and the knowledge that many good things awaited them was enough to bring out the largest attendance of Essex County farmers and their wives that ever graced an Essex County Farmers' Day.

In the morning, at the auditorium in the Boys' building two very interesting and timely subjects were considered. "Some Vital Farm Problems for 1922" by Prof. H. F. Thompson of M. A. C., and "The Home Garden" by W. N. Craig of Brookline. Prof. Thompson is well known to Essex County and gave as usual a convincing message in a way that fastened it in the minds of his audience. Mr. Craig had the happy faculty of making his word pictures so plain that one saw the beautiful things he was describing as though they were viewing the real scenes. One secret of a successful garden is the love of flowers in the heart. In addition to that one must cultivate, cultivate, cultivate. Flowers mean much in any home. High colors are bad because they are not restful. Evergreens are needed. Both annuals and perennials can be used with good results, but the situation should be studied and restful effects planned. Old-fashioned flowers are a never-ending source of delight. Mr. Craig urged everyone to have a garden if it's only one plant.

This address was followed by the announcement of dinner and of the "trades and household exhibits."

The Girls' department had a very fine exhibit of garments, canned fruit, bread, and savings for the housewife. Some very fine soap was shown and the method of making from the beginning was demonstrated. The hats, dresses, lingerie, and embroidery, the work of the first-year girls was a credit to both the girls and their teachers and demonstrated clearly to the visitors what Essex Aggie is doing for its girls. All cannot work with their heads and make a success and the home-making department is opening up a new world for the girls who love to use their hands, who want to make the pictures they dream of, realities. How much it means to them was evident to all observers as they eagerly explained the different exhibits: they had found themselves and were bound to be as big successes as their brothers and sisters who use their brains alone to win out.

The trades exhibits were high grade, the household labor-saving devices were many and reasonable in price. One very practical labor-saver, for those who have electricity was a small electric stove which was doing real cooking in an unbelievably short time and doing it well at a very small cost. Another device was a small tea kettle which could be used at any electric light connection, furnishing hot water in a minimum time. In the kitchen utensil exhibit a knife was shown that kept sharp but did not turn black when used and did not stain the hands.

At the corn show a variety of corn of all kinds was shown proving that Essex County can well be proud of what its farmers are doing in that line.

The premiums won were:

Class VII.—Best 1-2 pound squash seeds:

The school exhibits of the boys' work was both interesting and instructive. Two of especial interest were the making of seed-beds and the care of trees to prevent breaking of limbs and repairing of broken trees after storms such as the ice storm of last winter. The boys not only understood how and why but they were also able to explain to the visitors clearly and concisely so they could not help understanding each process. This was another proof of the working value of the County School.

In the afternoon, lectures were given in the Woman's section at the girls' building as follows:

Spring millinery, Miss Ethel Browne, instructor of the Home-making department. A demonstration of the making of a hat was given followed by an open discussion which yielded several valuable bits of information.

Mrs. Clifton Johnson of Hadley, Mass., chairman of the State Grange Home Economics committee, then gave a talk on, "Short Cuts in Housekeeping." Mrs. Johnson is well known to Essex County audiences and her spicy, helpful talk gave many hints that all could use, and some that a few could use. Team-work in the family is necessary if one is to realize the full benefit of "short cuts." Tact is also a very real factor, the ability to put one's self in the other fellow's place. A watching of steps and the analyzing of each duty often opens up a way to save time and strength.

Miss S. Agnes Donham of the Association for the Promotion and Protection of Savings, Boston, then spoke on "Spending the Family Income." Here ideas were practical and could be carried out in the majority of homes.

In the Main building—Poultry section—Prof. J. C. Graham spoke on, "Results of Practical Breeding Methods"; Roy C. Jones, "Is Poultry Raising Profitable?"; and Pro. John S. Carver of Essex Aggie conducted the Poultry Round Table discussion. Every moment was brimful of interest and all felt more than repaid.

Livestock and Crops section—John B. Abbott, extension specialist in agronomy, gave a talk to hear which the listening farmers agreed was well worth spending a day at Aggie even if no other attraction were offered.

This was followed by a lecture, "A Real Dairy Project for Our County," by Sumner R. Parker, county agent leader M. A. C. after which Prof. O. M. Camburn opened the Round Table discussion.

Fruit section—Dusting vs. Spraying—Prof. F. C. Sears, M. A. C.—"How Shall We Manufacture and Handle our Fruit By-Products?' Prof. K. W. Cheno, with M. A. C. This lecture was especially important in view of the fact of the promise of an exceptionally large fruit crop this year.

G. A. Meigs of Essex Aggie conducted the Round Table discussion which brought out many facts which were handled so that they were made of real practical value to the audience.

An illustrated lecture on "Power Farming" was the last on the program, and another Farmers' Day was ended with the knowledge that lectures, attendance and exhibits had been the "best ever" and that Essex Aggie was proving a help to not only the boys and girls of Essex County but also a real practical help to the fathers and mothers as well. Begin now to plan to attend and exhibit at the next "Farmers' Day."

Sarcastic.

The first step in learning whether your child is properly nourished, we read, is to "Weigh the child in kilograms." The kilograms are very light, we understand, but if absolute accuracy, is required, you may weigh the child in them first, and then later take 'em off and weigh 'em separately. On second thought, we advise the separate weight in all cases, especially where the kilograms are winter weight.

Reading further, you multiply the result by ten, and then "divide the result by the child's sitting height in centimeters"—just everyday centimeters will do—"and take the cube root of the result, and you will have a figure that will tell you whether your child is properly nourished." Most any architect or engineer in the telephone book will be glad to call and find the cube root for you.—Kansas City Star.

Telephones Aid Forest Rangers.

The rangers who police our national forests now are using portable telephones as a result of special perfections and adaptations of this method of communication to timber country requirements.

Each ranger carries a portable telephone as part of his equipment. Wire service is maintained between the headquarters camp, field points and lookout stations.

Instead of the overhead telephone lines, the forest telephone wires hang loosely from trees 10 to 12 feet above the ground so that in case a tree falls on the line it merely will take up some of the slack and not break the wire.—Atlantic City (N. J.) Gazette.

Shoot Cable Over River.

Telephone and press communication with Portland and points as far north as Montana, cut off recently by the overflowing of the Santiam river, in central Oregon, was restored by shooting across the river a weight to which was attached a light wire.

A projectile gun was used, according to the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company. After ten attempts the wire was landed across a 400-foot gap and an emergency cable pulled across.

Too Much Cut Out.

"Your show can play in Plunkville if you cut out the objectionable features."

"Won't pay me."

"Nonsense. You can continue to charge $2 per seat."

"Not for a ten-minute show."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

RECALLING "GOOD OLD DAYS"

Seriously, Were They Really So Very Much Better as Most Elderly People Think?

The vanity of age is a curious thing. As we approach fifty most of us who have survived plagues, pestilence and famine, wars, panics and the other perils that flesh is heir to begin to hark back to the good old times when everything was different. Because things were different we foster the delusion that everything was better. We expect youngsters to listen with rapt attention to our reminiscences. I confess that I myself find it necessary to fight constantly a tendency to corner some hapless youngster and describe to him the old statehouse, or the Union station as it used to be in the good old times before the tracks were elevated and the mortality list lowered. Or, in a mood of condescension, I speak of that glorious year when our town figured in the schedules of the National league.

Baseball, I intimate, reached perfection in that year of wonder. When I speak of Kelly and Clarkson and other giants of those days and their visit to our capital, or recall Jack Glasscock as the most efficient and captivating shortstop the diamond has ever known, he merely smiles sadly; and if you continue he may be driven to ask you what you think of Babe Ruth and some other luminaries of the degenerate present. There have been great men since Agamemnon, and we needn't imagine that the youth of today are not aware of the fact. Sufficient unto the day are the heroes thereof.—Harper's Magazine.

ANATOLE FRANCE AND INGRES

Great Author, as a Youth, Glad of Opportunity to Be of Service to Venerable Man.

Ingres lived 200 feet away from my home, on the Quai Voltaire. I knew him by sight. He was more than eighty years old. Age, which is a disaster for ordinary mortals, is an apotheosis for men of genius.

I was in the Theater du Chatelet on the night when "The Magic Flute" was sung for the first time by Christine Nilsson. I had an orchestra seat. Long before the curtain rose the theater was full. I saw M. Ingres coming toward me. It was he, his head like a bull, his eyes still black and piercing, his short stature, his powerful gait. It was known that he loved music. I realized that having the entree to the theater he had come in and was vainly looking for a seat. I was about to offer him mine; he did not give me the chance.

"Young man," he said, "give me your place; I am M. Ingres."

I rose, radiant. The venerable old man had done me the honor of choosing me to give up my place to M. Ingres.—Anatole France, in the Dial.

Milk Bottle Thermometer.

A North Woodward housewife, who lives in a house boasting a back porch, says she can always tell how cold it is by the length of the cone of frozen milk in the neck of the bottle she finds on her back porch every morning. By comparison with a nearby thermometer, she says, she finds that at about 20 above the cap of the bottle is barely lifted and the contents frozen about two inches down. At 14 above she found the cap shoved up about two inches and the milk solid some three inches down. Seven above is good for a projection of "solid" milk some four or five inches above the bottle neck and the contents semi-solid throughout. The bottle of milk thermometer is reliable only for above-zero temperature, as lower temperatures must be judged by the curvature of the frozen neck of cream.—Detroit News.

"Maxim Gorky" a Pseudonym.

"Maxim Gorky," who was reported to be on his way to England on a visit to H. G. Wells, but is still held up by the Bolshevist authorities on the frontier, is Alexei Pyeshkof, the poet and chronicler of the pariahs and vagabonds of Russian society.

"Gorky" means "bitter." The full name, "Maxim Gorky," may, perhaps be read to mean the "bitterest of the bitter." The pseudonym effectively symbolizes Pyeshkof's attitude toward life, for his fiction is the distilled essence of the disappointed.

He was not at first a Bolshevik, and he seems only to have joined the Bolshevist ranks under pressure. Given his choice between low diet and high office he preferred the latter, which is one, happily, that does not require him to take any active part in the perpetration of atrocities.—Living Age.

Haiti's Scrapping Roosters.

Roosters that crow day and night and never seem to recognize the difference between day and night were recently described by William Almon Wolff in Colliers. Mr. Wolff visited Haiti while he was serving as a sergeant in the marine corps reserve.

"When it comes to cock fighting in Haiti," he writes, "the rooster plays a very important role. Sunday afternoon is the great time for that, and all day Sunday you may see sporting Haitians going about with a game-cock or two under their arms. There are two rings in Port au Prince; thousands of men gather there every Sunday afternoon and bet on their favorities. Haitian cock fighting is not a very brutal affair; the birds aren't spurred. It is the custom for the owner of the losing rooster to cry quits before much damage is done."

WAS GEORGE WASHINGTON BLED TO DEATH?

Doctors Disagree

Washington died from a complication of diseases which seem to have ended in what is now called Pneumonia. Good birth and a clean and vigorous outdoor life had made a fine specimen of manhood of "the Father of our Country." Physicians have long discussed the true reasons of Washington's death.

Senna and a few other cathartics have been used since ancient times. But during the earlier years of American history the doctors were in the habit of opening a vein and letting out blood in the treatment of fevers and every ill that led to fevers, such as indigestion, constipation, colds, nervousness, and, in fact, most of the ills of man. As it is known that Washington was freely bled by the doctors, there are many physicians who believe that he might have lived many years longer if he had received different treatment.

It is true that bleeding will quickly reduce a fever, but so will a strong cathartic. In fact, when the custom of bleeding passed, "the cathartic habit" rapidly took its place. Today the general use of powerful cathartics is doing many times more harm than bleeding ever did

Strangely enough there always have been pure and mild medicines that made the use of bleeding or cathartics almost unnecessary.

For example, consider Sanalt. It is a hundred years since Doctor Osgood of Boston commenced to give it to his patients. Doctor Osgood married into the Wilson family of druggists who compounded the Sanalt for him, and so practically one family has been making it for a hundred years.

Throughout all this time prominent physicians of New England have been prescribing Sanalt for impoverished blood, or anemia, and for all that causes or is caused by poor blood, such as boils and other painful or disfiguring sores, indigestion and most forms of stomach trouble, constipation, torpid liver, kidney affections, and general debility.

Sanalt is a reconstructive tonic. It does not FORCE the bowels to act, but it stimulates and so strengthens the blood and all the organs that they, after short treatment, act naturally, vigorously and pleasantly.

A good description of what Sanalt will do is to be found in the following letter, written by Mrs. G. C. Bateson, who has spent all her life in Pawtucket, R. I. She resides at 114 Mineral Springs Ave.

"I had been slowly failing for two years. The doctor said it was general decline. I was weak, depressed and terribly nervous. The troubles that led up to this condition were indigestion and constipation resulting in poor blood, hemorrhoids, gas in stomach, backache, headaches and dizziness. I was close to a complete breakdown. The medicines I took, including cathartics, only seemed to make my troubles worse. When I was just about ready to give up, Druggist Gill suggested that I try Sanalt. He praised it very highly and said if I was not perfectly satisfied he would return my money.

"The result of two bottles of Sanalt was astonishing. To put it in a few words, they practically made me well. All my organs acted right, my aches and pains left me, my complexion improved, and I am convinced that Sanalt the Sensible Tonic is a truly wonderful remedy."

Stop Influenza Spreading

Many cases develop into pneumonia. Prevention is easier than cure. A simple remedy to avoid disease, build up the system by taking five-grain Argo-Phosphate Tablets. They increase strength and build up all run down anemic conditions and revitalize the entire system.

The daily increase of Spanish Influenza reported by local physicians shows how many people are failing to take advantage of ordinary protection to avoid infection of the terrible germs.

Influenza, after it develops, is sometimes difficult to cure, as it quickly turns to pneumonia. It is, therefore, much easier to prevent it by keeping the system well nourished with good, healthful food, and exercise in the open air and take a good tonic to build up and strengthen the entire body so as to prevent the disease. As soon as you feel a cold coming on, you should immediately take a good laxative, such as Calo Pills.

These are made from vegetable ingredients, having the same effect as calomel but they will not salivate. Then take two 5-grain Argo-Phosphate Tablets after each meal and on retiring. They will build up your run-down, anemic condition, and give you a good appetite.

SPECIAL NOTICE—Argo-Phosphate, which is so highly recommended, contains phosphate such as prescribed by leading physicians throughout the country, and it will be found the most effective form for treating patients with nervous dyspepsia, stomach troubles, brain fag and nervous prostration. It will renew youthful vim and vigor, and build up the whole body.

Argo-Phosphate may be secured with or without a prescription at any reliable druggist's.

Birthday Party to Manager

A. L. Jobes, manager of the Shawsheen laundry, was tendered a birthday party, Wednesday afternoon by the employees of the laundry, in honor of his 62nd birthday. The party came as a complete surprise to Mr. Jobes when on entering his office he found a beautiful bouquet of pinks and two large birthday cakes decorated with candles on his desk. The cakes were made by Mrs. Soderberg and Mrs. Elizabeth Henderson.

At 3.30 p. m. Mr. Jobes declared a recess and invited all the employees of the laundry to partake of the feast. He was wished many happy returns of the day and all present expressed the wish that he would live to see many more birthdays.

One-third of All Women 40 or Over—in Inches

The number of women who take 40-inch bust size or over is about a third of the whole female population. It would be interesting to know in what proportion "stout" stock is carried in most department stores. The experience of shoppers tends to show that the percentage is low.

The question well may be asked, in view of the rapidly increasing interest in stout apparel: Are women growing stouter or are stout women growing more particular about their looks?

The woman of to-day has far more chance for physical development than the woman of a generation ago. The greater social freedom alone takes women about as never before, and their interest in sports is continually increasing.

A distinction should be made between merely fat women and women of muscular development. The younger woman today, without looking at all fat, may nevertheless be so well developed, through high school and college activities, that she will require extra-size clothing.

This large woman is young and not conservative in dress like a middle-aged stout woman. She is likely to be well proportioned too. Not only does she appreciate but she can carry becomingly the new styles in the fashionable colors.

Large women, irrespective of age, really care more, not less, about their appearance, compared with other women. The policy of any-old-thing-will-do is out of date—if ti ever was in—in respect to fitting and satisfying the stout customer.—Dry Goods Economist.

New Postmasters Must Attend School

Newly appointed postmasters to offices of the second and third classes will have to attend school as one of their first duties, according to the latest edict issued by Postmaster General Hays in his campaign for postal improvement. This order takes effect at once and will apply to all postmasters appointed following January first. These schools will be held at some central large postoffice in each state which will be designated by the postal department.

Upon receiving his commission each newly appointed postmaster will be ordered to report to the postoffice designated for instruction, which will include every phase of the work of a postoffice. Postmasters must bear all of their own expenses incident to this training. Among the many things in which the newly appointed postmasters will be instructed are: how to meet the public; the postmaster's place in the community; how to educate the public, through publicity, in the use of the mails; how to handle complaints; how to guard the mails; and the postmaster's relationship with the postal department. Newly appointed postmasters will be informed that their community's welfare depends to a very great extent upon their willingness and capacity to give it better postal service.

Each postmaster, after he has completed this intensive course of instruction in one of the larger postoffices in his state, will return home and write the department, giving a review of what he has learned. It is the purpose of the Postmaster General, by this innovation, to impress upon the newly appointed postmaster in second and third class offices, that he is the local manager of the biggest business institution in the world, and that he must be capable of "selling" the postal service to the public.

American Woolen Wins Over Massachusetts Cotton

As a result of Saturday's game between the American Woolen and Massachusetts Cotton at Lowell, the American Woolen stands a fine chance of winning the championship. If they can beat Abbot Worsted in their next game they will in all probability win the championship of the Industrial League. Saturday's game tied the American Woolen and Massachusetts Cotton.

Jones, a new man on the Woolen team, scored both goals, Hackney scoring one for the Massachusetts Cotton.

Jones started the game and immediately Law got possession of the ball and flashed in a shot which missed by inches. The Cotton team began to press and Brown outwitted Glass on his way. Mitchell finished up by shooting past when tackled by Rishton.

The goal kick put the American Woolen forwards once more on the attack. Dundas by great strategy got into a nice position giving Gilmartin the ball. He made a perfect play shooting the ball across which Murray was lucky to get. Law was given a fine chance to score by Jones but Swanton interfered.

The Cotton team could make no headway against the defence of the Woolen men, Butler, Watson, and Glass playing their parts in fine manner. Murray of the Cotton team was frequently penalized for fouling and once in particular he brought Butler to the ground. The American Woolen team by good forward work was rewarded with a goal, Jones heading the ball into the net out of Swanton's reach from a center by Inch.

Massachusetts Cotton got plenty of support from their followers and Brown and Mitchell were doing their best to equalize. In a rush on the Cotton goal a corner fell to the Woolen team. Gilmartin placed the kick nicely for Jones to head a second goal for the Lawrence team.

Half time: American Woolen 2, Mass. Cotton 0.

Hurrell played a great game in the second period and well deserved the applause he got from the crowd.

The forwards of the Cotton team now began to press the American Woolen defence, Hackeney scoring a soft goal for them.

The latter part of the game was a trial of strength between the Massachusetts Cotton defence and the front line of the American Woolen team. Better playing has not been seen on the Bunting Grounds this year. Swanton saved the goals time after time from shots by Dundas, Inch and Jones. Murray seemed to lose his judgment entirely and he was not a match for Jones.

The lineups:

MASS. COTTON	AMERICAN WOOLEN
Swanton, g.	g., Hurrell
Whitney, rb.	rb., Rishton
Law, lb.	lb., Caldwell
Young, rhb.	rhb., Glass
Murray, chb.	chb., Butler

Taylor, cf.	cf., Jones
Brown, lif.	lif., Inch
Mitchell, lof.	lof., Law

Goal Scorers: Jones 2. Referee, V. Dobson, Lawrence. Linesmen, Patterson, Hackeney and Higginbottom.

Below is the league standing to date:

A Few Fashion Frills

Cable girdles bind many fashionable gowns. These are crocheted, either twisted with a cable and pearls entwined, or p'ain. Scalloped and open-work organdies predict a summer mode in froks.

The irregular hem on dinner frocks still remains in good favor.

The three-piece sports costume with cape and jumper dress effect is one of the most favored buys.

Bright colors in headwear are shown. Some of the larger hats are gaily colored with fruit and flowers.

Sport felt hats are very good for early spring wear in all the new shades.

English cretonnes with gay flowers on a cream ground are liked for summer frocks.

The redingote style in black moire is shown in tailored frocks.—Dry Goods Economist.
